

Air Cadets Visit The Capital

In appreciation for the hard work they did last summer when they trained as a precision drill squad and competed for the Walsh Trophy, the lads of No. 588 Canadair Squadron were treated to a week-end trip to Ottawa.

As guests of No. 51 Optimist Squadron and the RCAF, the cadets visited various interesting spots including the Parliament buildings and the War Museum.

EARLY JET — Sgt J. Gideon, Sgt. A. Conway and F/S I. Manley showed considerable interest in a German Heinkel fighter which saw service during World War II. A visit to the Wan Museum was a highlight of No. 588 squadron's visit to Ottawa.

VISIT OF NO. 588 (CANADAIR) SQUADRON

OTTAWA

26 - 27 NOVEMBER 1955

QUITE A CRATE — LAC J. Timmermans and Cpl. N. Desjardins, of No. 588 Canadair Air Cadet Squadron, examine a model of a Curtiss biplane that took them back to another air age, when struts, open cockpits and fixed undercarriage were common. Thirty-three cadets and three officers of the squadron visited the Ottawa Wan Museum, November 26 and 27.
